Walt Disney World Hacks by Susan Veness

Wow! I usually find something to read every time I'm at the library, but this new book is outstanding!

Even if you aren't going to Disney World, I think anyone will be able to get some travel tips from _Walt Disney World Hacks._ You can read the entire book in one evening, since it contains over 350 short tips for Disney trips, and traveling in general.

Remember those "cookies" that are part of your computer searching? It's like leaving a trail of bread crumbs for companies to follow. According to this tip book, the price that looked so attractive last time you checked has now gone higher. Next time, clear your computer's search history (cache) before searching again. You'll look like a new customer and the computer won't remember that you've searched before and artificially inflate the price.

And how about this one? If you realize that you've forgotten something crucial, like your phone charger, stop at the airport's lost and found department. Items that have gone unclaimed for 90 days are usually fair game, and if you "ask nicely" you might be able to avoid a new purchase.

If you are indeed going to Disney and are anxious for _Haunted Mansion or Tower of Terror,_ you might occasionally see a posted wait time of 13 minutes. If you do, then head on over! In an homage to "unlucky 13", that particular wait time means there is NO WAIT at all for these attractions.

You'll find these and many other interesting and helpful travel and vacation trips in _Walt Disney World Hacks_, available at EPLD. Two thumbs up for this new title.
