

Book Review (Herron 5.8.20)

Have you ever seen a movie that you couldn't wait to share with all your friends? Or maybe you've heard of a movie but aren't sure about spending your time on it? One of the newest books in our Young Adult section is perfect if you're looking for a "classic". Movies to See Before You Graduate from High School, by Michael Howarth, is a one-of-a-kind guide to new and old classic movies.

Titles like Hunt for the Wilderpeople, Moana, and Ready Player One are reviewed and summarized to help you make your decision. The highlights for each title include "why you should see this film", "main themes", a "classic line", and other movies for a "recommended double feature".

Helpful lists included are the "Top-Five Lists" (Best to Watch with Parents, Best Soundtrack, Best Tearjerker, etc) An additional section of movies listed by main theme is also added, with categories such as bullying, ambition, depression, courage, and empowerment.

While all the movies may not match your viewing tastes, this volume is a good tool to help sort out those on your To Watch list. You can find this book in the new Young Adult Section under YA/791.43/HOW
